*Early detection and treatment of Skin Cancers
CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE!*

Two out of every three Queenslanders can expect to develop skin cancer at some time during their life.

There are just over 700,000 cases of skin cancer diagnosed in Australia each year, but the good news is that early detection of skin cancer almost always leads to a successful cure.

The main aim of our clinic is to detect skin cancer as early as possible so as to effectively treat skin cancer in the Bayside area of Brisbane.

Who's at risk?

Prolonged exposure to the sun over time can cause skin cancer and melanoma in both men and women. As Queensland has one of the highest rates of skin cancer in the world it is absolutely vital that all of us protect our skin. The UV readings in the Bayside area are high all year round, so sun protection needs to be part of our daily routine. The older we become, the higher the risk of skin cancer developing on our face, hands, legs and back. Even those who protect their skin can still develop skin cancer in Queensland.

Skin cancer can effect women too

Protect your skin from the sun every day
